Andrew Argue is the CEO and co-founder of Corvee, an award winning software and solutions company serving tax and accounting firms. Under Andrew's guidance and leadership, Corvee is changing the way accounting professionals do tax planning. He had a goal early on in his career to help tax and accounting firms make the transition from compliance to advisory services to help them increase revenue, profitability and efficiency, while providing the highest value to their clients. He has done this with Corvee and has been instrumental in defining what the future of tax planning looks like for the industry.

In 2020, the company launched a first-of-its-kind tax planning software to give accounting firms and tax professionals the ability to formulate a tax savings calculation, develop a proactive and strategic tax plan and be the trusted advisor clients need.

Under his leadership, the team at Corvee is regularly releasing new tax strategies and growing the product to include additional features and services to help tax firms better serve their clients. In March of this year, Corvee announced the launch of state and local tax planning within the company's award-winning tax planning product.

With more than 1,500 strategies, firms now have the ability to quickly and easily
